

domino

This $25 Window Treatment Is a Designer Favorite

Five ways to try the look.

Custom window treatments can be expensive. Maybe you have high ceilings and ready-made curtains that come up short, or perhaps you're just not finding the right style. Window coverings are an unavoidable expense—whether you're seeking privacy from nosy neighbors or you want to stay asleep past 6 a.m.—but how do you find something that looks great on a tiny budget? Thankfully, we've found a designer-endorsed solution.

Going the budget route is especially tempting when you have loads of windows to cover. Just ask Heide Hendricks and Rafe Churchill of Hendricks Churchill, who have used them in multiple recent projects, including the sunroom in this Weston, Connecticut, house, and their own teal-colored kitchen.

